Mustangs mount late inning comeback

ly calmed down enough for the SNR Black Sox to travel to Wishek for a match-

Black Sox wasted no time establishing a lead. In the top of the first, a single from set runners on second and third with no outs.

Nick Berglund and Koby Duda were up next, and with productive ground outs. A strikeout followed, putting an end to SNR's offense that inning.

It was a productive first that ended it would also that evening.

The Mustangs' start-ing pitcher, Jace Nitschke, would go on to pitch six shutout innings with strength and efficiency, allowing zero free bases and notching 10 strikeouts.

Meanwhile, SNR's starting pitcher, Keaton Cudworth was somingly on

As the game dragged on, however, South Border began having much more success at the plate as the Black Sox defense began to crumble.

The Mustangs' come-back began with a disastrous bottom of the fourth, which saw SNR asleep at the wheel.

A costly error got things started, allowing one runner to advance to first base, who later advanced to third after a wild pitch. Not long after, another runner stole second base, and with runners on second and third, a single drove in the Mustangs' first run.
